The book is an interesting summary on the topic of Italian medium tanks and a complement to Italian Light Tanks1919-45. It is divided into sections on the historical context, the medium tank development (M11/39 to M15/42), the heavy tanks (P26/40 & P26/43), the associated Semoventi SP guns (of the 75, 90 and 105mm types), on the production and ...

Several factors delayed and greatly hampered the development of an Italian medium tank during World War II. The first was the strategic stance of the country, focussed on a war against neighbouring countries such as France and Yugoslavia, and ill-prepared for a war in the Western Desert. Since these European countries bordered with Italy in mountainous areas, light tanks were preferred as ...

Italian Medium Tanks - Osprey Publishing

Given the limited size of these Osprey New Vanguard series of books this is not going to take the place of a broader and in depth exploration of the war in North Africa and/or mainland Italy but there are plenty of instances where there is discussion of battlefield events and it almost engenders a respect for the Italian tank crews going into battle with British and US built tanks that they really stood little chance prevailing against.

The Italian army, unlike those of the British and French, did not use tanks in combat during World War I and, by November 1918, only one training unit equipped with French Schneider and Renault tanks had been formed. Consequently, during the 1920s the Italian army had just one single tank type in its armoured inventory - the Fiat 3000. Only in 1927 was the first tank unit formed as a branch of ...
